

Simple Present Tense

The past perfect continuous tense is used to describe an action that was happening continuously up until a specific point in the past.

- I work in a bank. (This sentence describes my current occupation.)
- They play tennis every Saturday. (This sentence describes something that happens regularly.)

Present Continuous Tense

The present continuous tense is used to describe an action that is happening at the moment of speaking.

- I am working in a bank. (This sentence describes my current occupation.) They are playing tennis. (This sentence describes an action that is happening at the moment of speaking.)

Present Perfect Tense

The present perfect tense is used to describe an action that happened at a time in the past but has relevance to the present.

- I have worked in a bank. (This sentence describes my previous occupation.)
- They have played tennis. (This sentence describes an action that happened in the past but has relevance to the present.)

Present Perfect Continuous Tense

The present perfect continuous tense is used to describe an action that started in the past and is still continuing in the present.

- I have been working in a bank. (This sentence describes my current occupation.)
- They have been playing tennis. (This sentence describes an action that started in the past and is still continuing in the present.)

Past Simple Tense

The past simple tense is used to describe an action that happened at a specific time in the past.

- I worked in a bank. (This sentence describes my previous occupation.)
- They played tennis. (This sentence describes an action that happened at a specific time in the past.)

Past Continuous Tense

The past continuous tense is used to describe an action that was happening at a specific time in the past.

- I was working in a bank. (This sentence describes my occupation at a specific time in the past.)
- They were playing tennis. (This sentence describes an action that was happening at a specific time in the past.)

Past Perfect Tense

The past perfect tense is used to describe an action that happened before another action in the past.

- I had worked in a bank before I started my own business.
- They had played tennis before they went to the movies.

Past Perfect Continuous Tense

The past perfect continuous tense is used to describe an action that was happening continuously up until a specific point in the past.

- I had been working in a bank before I started my own business.
- They had been playing tennis before they went to the movies.

Future Simple Tense

The future simple tense is used to describe an action that will happen in the future.

- I will work in a bank.
- They will play tennis.

Future Continuous Tense

The future continuous tense is used to describe an action that will be happening at a specific time in the future.

- I will be working in a bank. (This sentence describes my occupation at a specific time in the future.)
- They will be playing tennis. (This sentence describes an action that will be happening at a specific time in the future.)

Future Perfect Tense

The future perfect tense is used to describe an action that will have happened before another action in the future.

- I will have worked in a bank before I start my own business.
- They will have played tennis before they go to the movies.

Future Perfect Continuous Tense

The future perfect continuous tense is used to describe an action that will have been happening continuously up until a specific point in the future.

- I will have been working in a bank before I start my own business.
- They will have been playing tennis before they go to the movies.